

TAFT GETS POINTS ON GOLF; MAYBE ON OFFICES, TOO

Senator Beveridge Among
Callers After Champion
Travis Has Long Talk.

President-elect Taft really enjoyed himself to-day. He had a long confidential talk at the home of Henry W. Taft, No. 35 West Forty-eighth street, with Walter J. Travis, the noted golf champion.

Since he has taken up golf as his favorite pastime Mr. Taft has been given a lot of advice about the game—much of it by volunteers who were not qualified. Mr. Travis is a technical master of the ancient sport.

The conversation between Mr. Travis and the President-elect was strictly technical. Mr. Taft's friends will observe his golf when he gets to Augusta, Ga., late this week, and goes on the links. He ought to show improvement.

Among the political callers on Mr. Taft to-day was Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana. The Senator stands pretty well with the administration, having been a persistent and eloquent booster of "my policies." It is considered quite likely that some Indiana man favored by him will land a nice appointment, and thereby will the Vice-President, Mr. Fairbanks, be administered another job.

J. G. Schmidlapp, one of the prominent brewers of Cincinnati and an old friend of Mr. Taft, was another caller. The Taft family and the Schmidlapp family are pointed to with pride by Cincinnati people.

Mr. Taft will attend the dinner of the National Civic Federation to-night and to-morrow night will be the guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Ohio Society. On Thursday morning he will leave for Augusta. He has accepted several invitations to deliver addresses in the South, and will travel quite extensively in that section before his departure for Panama.

which made it impossible to reduce speed and the force of the collision was so great that the Brooklyn bounded back about twenty-five feet like a rubber ball. Passengers were knocked off their feet and horses were thrown down.

When Capt. Price realized that it was impossible to slacken the speed of the Brooklyn, he turned her hard against the pier, so that she ground against them as she rushed into the slip, but even this didn't prevent the bow of the boat from striking the pier with such strength that the planking was torn up as if it had been made of footpicks.

The ferry-boat rushed back into the pier a second time, but the shock was not so great as the first. Strangely enough the Brooklyn escaped damage, but the dock hands and drivers had all they could do to prevent a stampede among the frightened horses.

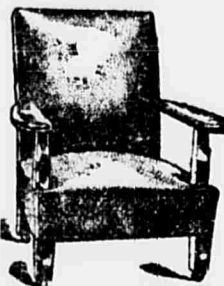

There were few passengers aboard and no one was injured, but the slip will not be fit for use for a day or two.
